The new half year began in the public school last week, and as a consequence teachers and pupils were kept rather busy adjusting themselves to the new relations. The heavy burdens of discontented parents and children with a greity ance against the present ruling, however, fell on the heads of the various principals, who feel that they have had a liard week. Many changes have taken place in the teaching corps, but the new element is rapidly becoming a part of the old, and all things will work harmoniously, it is hoped, for the remainder of the year.

Samuel Russell talked to the eighth grade of his travels in Europe.

Little Caroline and Herbert Schiller of rooms 1 in 2 at the Oquirrh have gone with their mother on a trip through Oregon and California.

Mrs. J. C. Angell has been supplying for Miss Fink all week at the Franklin school.

Mrs. E. W. Wilson and Mrs. Holman were among the visitors at the Emerson school last week.

Josephine Gardner recited "The Child Martyr."

Saturday night J. M. Cathcart delivered a lecture on "Robert Burns." The story of the poet's life was narrated, many interesting incidents being told, among them the story of Highland Mary and the awakening of the coet's sleeping talent. Mr. Cathcart dwelt upon the last days of Burns.

At Students' society Friday night Misses Parry and Hunter sang "My Home." and Mr. Holt, mayor of the school "city," gave an address on the "Life of Our President." The programme closed with a "Round-up," as it was called, by Instructor Decker. Mr. Decker spoke with much warmth on the necessity of students entering into their societies and athletics. He stated that book work is only half of the school work; that the student's aim is to become a good citizen, and that the good citizen is not the inactive man whose mind is stored with facts.

The week has been occupied with the regular half year examinations. A new departure is having all classes in the preparatory department, in the same subject, examined at the same time. For this purpose the large chapel is used and pasteboard tablets are provided instead of desks. The advantage is that only a single set of questions has to be prepared, and no discrimination can be charged in difficulty of questions given to different sections.
